

Puzzle Challenge 2010

The Maze

By: Doug Schwartz

April 1, 2010

It has been a little while since Pegamoose Games has released a Puzzle of the Month. Even though it has been a good thing for me, it has not been a good thing for the public. And, for that, I am truly sorry.

This has freed up some time to work on other projects. It hasn't been nothing for nothing. If you've been to the Pegamoose Games site, you can see we have some new features you can play any time. If you haven't already checked them out, there are Cryptograms, Word Scrambles, and Peganoose! (which is our version of hangman). There is CrazeMails, which is a silly way to send an email to your friends or co-workers. Plus, there is a strategy online game called "Dot Bom", a game in which you try to keep a startup company afloat by working on and selling products. I've been able to enter tons more content for Urban Legions. Plus, I have worked on more fiction, as well as some other side projects.

None of that still relieves the guilt from not releasing a new Puzzle of the Month in a while. Earlier this year, inspiration struck again. What if I release a bunch of puzzles all at once each year for April Fools Day? The result... The Maze!

I have released Puzzle Challenges before. The last one being the hunt for Pigleg's treasure. This is the first year to release an April Fools Day puzzle challenge. The Maze is not for fools, though. I've created a couple different style of puzzles that you can't do on pen and paper. And, the objective... Find the Pegamoose in the center of the maze. If you are up for the challenge, go to:

As an added bonus for playing the Puzzle of the Month version of this challenge, the last answer to The Maze is the solution. This Puzzle of the Month doesn't expire until the end of the year, so a lot of Pegapoints are at stake.

Submit this solution on the Pegamoose Games "Check Answers" page to accumulate score and for a chance to win a position on the Pegamoose Games Wall of Fame. Good luck!

Thank you for playing Pegamoose Games!
